

ACS Tuition Exchange Program at Rhodes College

FAQ

1. What is the ACS Tuition Exchange Program?

The Associated Colleges of the South (ACS) Tuition Exchange Program is a benefit (though not an automatic one) for employees of 15 ACS member institutions to allow their children or dependents to attend another ACS college or university at a relatively low cost.
2. How do I apply for the ACS Tuition Exchange Scholarship?

Students and parents/guardians should contact the ACS Tuition Exchange Coordinator at their home institution who will supply an informational form/application for the ACS tuition scholarship. The form will need to be filled out and submitted back to the ACS Coordinator. They will be the point of contact throughout the process.
3. How much is the ACS scholarship at Rhodes?

Rhodes will award full tuition, H V W L D S W H G recipients for the 2021-22 school year. The ACS award does not include the activity fee, room, board, and special fees not charged to students. Students with additional need are encouraged to discuss financial aid with institutions to which they are applying.
4. Are there fees associated with the program?

Participation costs parents just $2,000 per year. The fee is due July 15 each year and once paid, it is not refundable (if, for example, the student decides not to attend that year).
5. Many families ask the question, "will my freshman Import be offered an ACS scholarship at Rhodes?"

Students are considered for, but not guaranteed, an ACS Scholarship at Rhodes.
6. How are student applications evaluated?

We evaluate ACS applications with a holistic approach, as we do with admission in general, taking into consideration grades, courses, etc.

No, Rhodes, as with most schools in the ACC program, participates in ACC at the undergraduate level only.
